JOURNAL RELEASE ON 20 MARCH 2009

On 20 March 2009, 4 p.m., American Studies Leipzig will celebrate the release of the second issue of aspeers: emerging voices in american studies, Europe's first and currently only peer-reviewed graduate journal in American studies. The publication project is part of American Studies Leipzig's MA program. Over the course of the last semester, an editing team of six MA students has worked to select contributions, revise them together with the authors, edit them, and make them ready for publication. The result is a 130-page volume to be presented as part of the event.

This second issue, publicly available as of Friday's celebration, is organized around the topic of migration and mobility. It contains three academic papers by European MA students, six creative contributions from around the world, and an interview with Professor Rob Kroes.

Please join us in the Bibliotheca Albertina Lecture Hall on 20 March 2009, 4 p.m., to celebrate!
